§ 4 Insurance value, sum insured and underinsurance

- 1 For objects listed individually in the insurance policy the sum insured has to correspond with the insurance value. Upon request proof is to be provided by the insurance policy holder. The legal regulations for the underinsurance shall only apply for individually listed objects.
- 2 If the insurance has been concluded for a total of various objects not described in detail, the insurance policy holder can freely determine the sum insured for this.
- 3 Insurance value is in both cases the replacement value of insured objects of the same type and class. Customs, freight and transport costs in connection with replacement are also to be taken into account.
- 4 If the replacement value cannot be determined the total of the expenses which is necessary for restoring or procuring a comparable object is decisive.

§ 5 Calculation of indemnification

- 1 In the event that the necessary restoration expenses do not achieve or exceed the insurance value, the repair costs which are proven to be necessary will be reimbursed.
- 2 In case of destruction or loss of third party objects the insurance value of the object concerned will be reimbursed with the deduction of all discounts or price advantages.

In the case of own objects the indemnification payment of the insurance company increases in the event of loss or destruction to the replacement value, insofar as the object is still required for the project. However, if the object is not replaced or if the loss occurs after completion, the re-placement value is the payment limit in this case, too.
- 3 Follow-up property damages and also all consequential financial losses will not be reimbursed with the exception of the costs stated in § 4 sub-paragraph 3.
- 4 Payment limit is still the sum insured listed in the insurance policy or its addendums for the object. If several insured objects are affected by one loss, the maximum indemnification limit is still the total sum insured as agreed in the policy.
- 5 Residual values remain with the insurance policy holder and shall be deducted from the indemnification.
